JOB WORK

Of all kinds neatly, promptly and cheaply done at the office of the DAILY BULLETIN.

An Afghan Woman's Shoes.

The slippers and shoes are of Cabulese make, and are very pretty. On a pale green background beautiful patterns are worked with gold and silver thread and parti-colored silk, until the effect is more like that of a fairy's slipper than one for daily use. But a stout leather sole is put on, with high heels rudely bound with iron, and then the work of art is complete. The stalls in which their slippers and shoes are made are the gayest in the whole bazaar. A Cabulese lady's foot is small, almost to deformity, and the baggy trousers by contrast make them appear exceedingly petite. From the few faces seen, and those chiefly of old or passed women, it is difficult to judge of the famed beauty Cabulese are said to boast of. The children are certainly, as a whole, the prettiest I have ever seen. Their complexions are red and white, with a tinge of olive pervading the skin, eyes black and lustrous, well-shaped features, teeth to make a western beauty envious, and bright, intelligent looks that sadly belie the race to which they belong. Their mothers must be beautiful, for their fathers are generally villainous-looking; the men losing all the pleasing traits which as boys they possessed. The lady I have described as seen in the zebanna for a moment was certainly handsome, and was far lighter in complexion than a Spaniard; her eyes were really worthy of the praises sung by Hafiz, but the sensuous lips were a little too full and pouting. It was just such a face as one imagines in a harem, and would be in keeping with the languorous life of a voluptuary to whom sensuality is a guiding star. Such faces always lack character, and would soon prove insipid in the eyes of the west. The Cabulese lady, when journeying, is either carried in an elaborate wicker-work cage covered with the inevitable flowing linen, or rides Amazon fashion.

Another Repudiation.

A man with a countenance blurred as though a butcher had slapped his face, arrived in Little Rock. He was moneyless. Going to a pawn shop, he drew out a paper, threw it on the counter and exclaimed: "There, sir, is my commission as Mayor of Black Oak! Give me fifty cents on it."

"Take it away," said the broker, "and don't bother me with your foolishness."

"I will go and see the Governor of the State, sir, and have this matter investigated." He went to the State-house and hurriedly walked into the Governor's room.

"Do I recognize in this grave personage the Chief Executive of Arkansas?"

"I am the Governor. Have a seat."

"Did you not issue me this commission as Mayor of Black Oak?" he asked, handing the papers to the Governor.

"Yes."

"Is it valid?"

"Certainly."

"But it won't pass. No one will take it. I can't raise ten cents on it. Are you going to allow your administration to be insulted? A pawnbroker, sir, refused to give me fifty cents on this paper. It is not that I care; oh, no, it is not for myself, although I have a wife and children that are at this moment teething."

"Don't mean to say that your wife is teething?"

"No, sir. I mean my children. I say it not for myself, but for you, sir, that I am indignant. What course must I pursue? Give me fifty cents and take back the commission. Ho? Then you repudiate. Good day, sir. I will sever my connection with this repudiating State.—Little Rock Gazette.

Mrs. Partington at the Soldiers' Bazaar.

It was at a distinguished party, called by the ladies in aid of the Soldiers' Bazaar, that Mrs. Partington found herself, as well as she could for the crowd. There was much said in support of the object, and a warm enthusiasm prevailed, amounting at times to loud manifestations of approval.

"Quite a furor," the President of the meeting remarked to the dame that sat beside him.

"A few roar!" she replied, her spectacles flashing with excitement. "I should call it a good many roar, and everybody seems willing to exultate the movement. How much we owe to soldiers who made sacrifices of themselves for us, and laid down their arms and legs only when the Union was saved!"

"Very true," responded the President, "and I trust that all are willing to admit their indebtedness."

"They may be," replied she; "but I feared it was something like Mrs. Hite's borrowing my eggs and saying she would be always indebted to me for them; as she was for she never paid 'em back."

The President took a little annoyed. Soon there came another shout.

"Don't you think," she said, "that these few roars should have been perpetrated when the war was over, and not left the women to do what was incumbent on the men?"

"Perhaps," replied her interlocutor, "but better late than never."

"It came nigh being too late," said she, "with the poor legless heroes running to their long home through a poor-house gate; but, thank heaven, some will have a comfortable home to go to, after this, where they can smoke the calumny of peace, without even a tax-collector to make 'em afraid."

She was wearying, but she meant well.—B. P. Shillaber in Sword and Pen.

A Devout Lion.

A sensational drama was being performed in the chief theater of Moscow, the crowning situation of the place being a combat in a rocky pass between a lion and an Arab chief. The lion scrambles up a steep ascent, and is about to spring from its summit upon his foe, when the man brings him down with a well-aimed shot. The part of the lion had been sustained most successfully by a trained gymnast named Alexievitch who suddenly fell ill, and the management was compelled to intrust the role to an active super, who understood it at a few hours' notice. When the time arrived for his debut, he bounded on the stage with admirable vigor, and scuttled up the cliff in irreproachable style. But when the Arab chief discharged his musket, the lion, utterly thrown off his guard by the report, stood erect on his hinder paws, crossed himself devoutly, and, exclaiming, "Heaven help us!" hurriedly descended the cliff tail foremost, amid the jubilant shouts of the audience.

The Head Waiter.

Oh, no, my son, that dignified gentleman who looks down upon you with such majestic complacency, who possesses the grace of Apollo Belvidere, the proud front of Jove and the equanimity of the mummified remains of Rameses the First—that sublime personage, my son, is not an Emperor, King, Prince or President of some powerful nation, neither is he the owner of countless millions, nor the landlord of this caravansary. He is far above all thrones, dominations, princedoms, virtues, powers. He is mightiest in the mightiest. Look at him, my son, and tremble. Behold the head waiter, and shrink into nothingness before his transcendent grandeur and—check.—Boston Transcript.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JAN. 18, 1882.

The lower house of the Legislature has passed a bill repealing what is known as the test oath, which is in addition to the constitutional oath, and which all officers holding place under the State have been required to take before entering upon the discharge of their duties.

The following is the act regulating the marital rights of husband and wife which has just been passed by the Kentucky Senate. It is expected to go through the House without change and become the law of the State. As it makes important changes in the existing law on this subject it will be read with interest:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, A married woman may own, in her own right, real and personal property, obtained by descent, gift, purchase, or her own earnings; and manage, sell, convey and dispose of the same, by will or otherwise to the extent and in the manner the husband can properly belonging to him; Provided, That where the husband and wife shall be living together, no transfer or conveyance of goods and chattels from one to the other shall be valid as against the rights of third persons, unless such transfer or conveyance be in writing, and be acknowledged and recorded as mortgages are required to be acknowledged and recorded. And no such conveyance shall be valid as against antecedent creditors.

SEC. 2. Contracts may be made and liabilities incurred by a married woman, and enforced against her, to the same extent and in the same manner as if she were unmarried.

SEC. 3. Neither husband nor wife shall be entitled to recover compensation for labor performed or services rendered for the other, nor shall either be liable for the separate debts of the other, nor shall the wages, earnings, or property of either, nor the rent or income of property, be liable for the separate debts of the other.

SEC. 4. For all civil injuries committed by a married woman, damages may be recovered from her alone, and her husband shall not be liable therefor except in case where he would be jointly liable with her if the marriage did not exist.

SEC. 5. A married woman may sue and be sued without joining her husband, as if she were unmarried, and an attachment or judgment in such action may be enforced by or against her, as if she were a single woman.

SEC. 6. Should either the husband or wife unlawfully obtained or retain possession or control of property belonging to the other, the owner of the property may maintain an action therefor, or for any right growing out of the same, in the same manner and to the same extent as if he or she were unmarried.

SEC. 7. The necessities of the family, including the education of the children, shall be chargeable upon the property of both husband and wife, or of either of them, in favor of creditors therefor, and in relation thereto they may be sued jointly.

SEC. 8. The estate of courtesy is hereby abolished, and in the lieu thereof the husband shall have the same interest in the lands of the wife that the wife has by way of dower in the lands of the husband.

SEC. 9. If a married woman dies intestate, leaving issue, her surviving husband shall receive one-third of the surplus personal estate, and if she leaves no issue he shall receive one-half.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

happiness.

known and esteemed in society circles at Aberdeen, will be married on the 24th to Mr. C. W. Galbraith, of Manchester,
O. The wedding will take place at the M.
E. Church at half past six o'clock p. m.
Good luck to them.

SAYS the Covington Commonwealth:
The Board of Health, of Flushing, N.
Y., issued a notice in December last recommending general vaccination. This had but little effect. Early in the present month the board passed an ordinance requiring all the people of the town to be vaccinated within ten days, and persons failing were to be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. This had the desired effect.
There were objectors, of course, but they had to yield.

The fact is, the authorities ought to deal with the small-pox as they would with a wild bull or mad dog on the streets.
Prompt and decisive action is demanded.
When human life is threatened there is no time to stop and argue. Individual rights must give way to the public safety.

A Correction.

In preparing the proceedings of the Democratic Convention for publication last week, the assistant Secretary unintentionally made a slight mistake which he now in justice to certain parties cheerfully corrects.

The contestants for the nomination for jailer on the last ballot were Fitzgerald,
Brooks and Hess, instead of Fitzgerald,
Myall and Hess as published.

S. R. Brooks was withdrawn after the third ballot, when the result of the eighth ballot was announced, Myall was withdrawn and Brooks was renominated and the ninth ballot resulted as follows: Fitzgerald 26 votes, Brooks 15 and Hess 10.

LATEST FROM CATLETTSBURG.

Progress of the Trial—Ellis Still on the Witness Stand.

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., January 18, 2:20 p. m.—The trial of William Neal, one of the Ashland murderers, is dragging along slowly. The court adjourned to-day with George Ellis still on the witness stand.
Upon being asked whether or not he had killed either of the girls or the crippled boy, Ellis answered very emphatically that he had not.

He said he believed in a God and in future punishment and had been a church member, but did not consider himself one now. He averred that he did not fear to meet his God as he felt innocent of shedding the blood of any of the victims. He declared that he had been forced into the terrible affair by Craft and Neal.
His testimony up to this time is substantially the same as already published and is almost identical with the confession made by him before the grand jury. The prevailing opinion is that he is guilty.
A throng of interested spectators still continues to crowd the court room.

MESSRS. COX & POYNTER will make large shipments of plows to the South this week.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

GREEN wall-papers, like green confectionery, should always be regarded with grave suspicion.

SMALL-POX is infectious till the last scab has fallen off, and scarlatina till the last bit of skin has peeled.

FEET constantly cold are relieved by brief immersions in cold water, and the active friction with a rough towel.

TURPENTINE is a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel with it, and place the flannel on the chest and throat, and in very severe cases three to five drops on a lump of sugar may be taken internally. Every family should have a bottle of turpentine on hand.

BEE TEA FOR STRANGURY.—Dr. W. B. Jones, of Summerville, Ark., writes to the Medical Brief: "About twenty years ago I read in 'The Medical Adviser'—a medical work written by R. L. Thompson—that, in his hands, bee tea was almost a never-failing remedy in strangury. Since that time I have treated quite a number of cases of strangury, from different causes, with bee tea, and it has never yet disappointed me, where there was no actual mechanical obstruction."

IN THE SICK ROOM.—Under all circumstances keep the refreshments intended for the use of the invalid covered. Milk is a ready absorbent. Then there are cooling drinks, jellies, blancmanges and a variety of liquids usually seen at the invalid's bedside, which are all more or less absorbent. These should be kept covered. I once visited an invalid who had her bedside table supplied with an array of glasses, cups, tumblers, etc., the contents of not one of which could we see, all being covered with a most amusing variety of glass and porcelain lids. The invalid liked to forget the contents of each, and was amused to lift one or another of the tiny covers and select a refreshment which presented itself to her taste. And to keep invalids amused and ready to relish what is provided for them are important duties in nursing. Such slight attentions cost little trouble, while they prove to the sufferer that he or she is tenderly cared for.

CREOSOTE FOR BRONCHITIS AND CATARRH.—When going from Switzerland to Italy via Mont Cenis, some years ago, the writer contracted a severe cold, which, in the chill air of Turin, soon brought on a severe attack of bronchitis. We hastened over to the genial air of Genoa, but it afforded little relief, and the advice of Dr. Paccioti, professor in the noted Italian Medical College there, was called in. He prescribed a very simple remedy, which was at once effective, as it had been with many others to whom we have since recommended it. Put into a pint or large bottle about three gills of water, and add two drops of good wood creosote. Shake very thoroughly, take a mouthful, gargling it awhile in the throat, and swallow it. Repeat this frequently, so as to use up the mixture in the first twenty-five hours, always shaking well before taking. After the first day use three drops of creosote and the same amount of water during twenty-four hours, so long as it is needed. The same mixture has often proved very useful in catarrh. In this case a handful or two of well-shaken creosote and water is snuffed up through the nostrils until it reaches the throat and is spit out. A table-spoonful or more is also gargled in the throat and swallowed. As catarrh is an inflammation of the nasal passages, accompanied with a mucous deposit, the creosote, which is largely carbolic acid, would seem to be useful here just as diluted carbolic acid is effective in cleansing any putrid sores. Catarrh is the result of weakness and is promoted by a cold. A toning-up of the system and any simple remedy like the above is effective, unless the catarrh is severe and of long continuance as to have permanently disorganized the nasal cavities. It is folly to spend money for the much-advertised catarrh remedies, which are usually the sheerest medical quackery.—American Agriculturist.

WHEN the girl who has encouraged a young man for about two years suddenly tells him that she can never be more than a sister to him he can for the first time see the freckles on her nose.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK 1882.

The Sun for 1882, will make its thirtieth annual revolution under the present management, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort, but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

The Sun of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unobtrusive way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun.

It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882, will be the same outspoken, truth-telling and interesting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Poughkeepsie.

In politics we have decided opinions, and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret the Sun's political course.

The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of the unexcelled merit, full market reports and a careful proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like the Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Goldenrod of interesting literature, with the poetry of the day, prose every the worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good sized book, and is fitly more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for the Sun.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, or including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.50 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of the Sun is also furnished separately at $1.25 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
